ASSISTANT GENERAL COUNSEL POSITION

The Tennessee Department of Health is seeking an energetic litigation attorney to serve as an Attorney 4 in its Office of General Counsel. The duties for this position involve balancing litigation and transactional work including representing the Department in administrative law cases, preparing cases for litigation including intense medical record review, providing legal advice and drafting services to healthcare licensure boards, and analyzing proposed legislation. Experience is preferred but not required; intellectual curiosity, a strong desire to litigate and an interest in the healthcare industry are necessary. We are seeking applicants who will be adept at working in a dynamic, team-focused environment and handling a large and complex case load at different phases of litigation.
