Jeffery Wilson, Ph.D.

For the past five years, Dr. Jeffery Wilson has been an assistant professor in the Leadership Department's Higher and Adult Education Program at the University of Memphis. He completed his doctoral studies in Higher Educational Leadership at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, received his master's degree in Student Affairs Administration at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and did his undergrad at Virginia Commonwealth University. His areas of research interest are college student affairs and diversity, specifically leadership for diversity and campus climate.

Prior to coming to Memphis, Dr. Wilson worked in student affairs and enrollment services and was a visiting assistant professor. Dr. Wilson enjoys the academic side of higher education. Having worked in both settings, he understands the demands of the former and the culture of the latter and brings those insights to any endeavor on which he embarks. Dr. Wilson has an ambitious research agenda that is focused on diversity as it relates to multicultural education, leadership, and institutional culture and climate. Already, he has had several works to appear in the Journal of Diversity in Higher Education, the Journal of College Student Development, and Innovative Higher Education to name a few. His service includes membership to the editorial board of the Journal of Student Affairs Research and Practice, and the National Advisory Committee for the National Conference on Race & Ethnicity in American Higher Education (NCORE). Recently, Dr. Wilson was appointed to serve on the University's Diversity Committee. Dr. Wilson intends to continue building on his quest to be a diversity scholar while at the University of Memphis and looks forward to seeing more of his students graduate from the program and begin their own higher education pursuits.

Mitsunori Misawa, Ph.D.

Mitsunori Misawa, Ph.D. is a faculty member of the Higher and Adult Education program in the Department of Leadership at the University of Memphis. He received his Ph.D. in Adult Education with an Interdisciplinary Qualitative Studies Graduate Certificate from the University of Georgia. He also received his M.Ed. in Adult Education (Curriculum and Instruction) and his B.A. in Economics (International Business and Trade) from the University of Alaska Anchorage.

Dr. Misawa's major areas of research include social justice in postsecondary education, adult bullying, workplace education, community-based practice, policy and leadership studies, women's and gender studies, curriculum and instruction (face-to-face, online, and hybrid) for adult learners, lifelong learning, social sciences research methodologies (qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods), and qualitative research (narrative inquiry, case studies, and action research).

Dr. Misawa's work has been published in peer-reviewed journals and book chapters and has been presented and published in peer-reviewed conference proceedings at various national and international conferences related to his research areas. He is also currently serving as an editorial board member for Adult Education Quarterly. He serves as a manuscript reviewer for several journals and as a proceedings reviewer for various national and international conferences.

Prior to working at the University of Memphis, Dr. Misawa worked as an assistant professor at the University of Georgia where he taught a doctoral qualitative research methods course. He has also been an associate faculty member of the Institute for Women's Studies at the University of Georgia. Dr. Misawa also worked as an educator and a policy researcher at Central State Hospital in Milledgeville, Georgia, where he trained medical doctors, nurses, and administrators on state and federal policies, and developed and conducted a couple of the quantitative and mixed policy research studies.
