

Introduction to Restorative Practices
 Tennessee Department of Education
Office of Healthy, Safe and Supportive Schools
In partnership with STARS Nashville

On January 8, 2014, the U.S. Department of Education and U.S. Department of Justice issued guidance to assist schools in meeting their obligations under Federal law to administer student discipline without discriminating on the basis of race, color, or national origin in a dear colleague letter (here). Restorative practices have been proven effective in reducing misbehavior, bullying, violence, and crime among students while improving the overall climate for learning.

Introduction to Restorative Practices is a training that covers the basics of restorative practices and how one can use classroom circles as a restorative practice. This training is recommended for district- and school-level administrators responsible for school discipline policies and practices. Restorative Justice Conferencing will be held Dec. 8 for administrators to learn how to facilitate restorative conferences.

Books are provided for participants who attend.

Presenters

STARS Nashville staff are certified trainers in Restorative Practices from the International Institute for Restorative Practices and currently serve as school climate and safety consultants for the department's Office of Healthy, Safe and Supportive Schools. They also provide training specifically in empowering youth student leaders to become part of the solution to end bullying and harassment in their schools and communities through MOVE2STAND.

Who Should Attend?

Educators responsible for school discipline policies and practices are recommended to attend.
