

Warranties

Many businesses include written guarantees with their products. These guarantees are known as warranties. A warranty usually indicates how long the product is expected to last or work. A warranty also lists the conditions that must be met before the business will replace or repair a damaged or defective part.

Jason bought a poorly built tree house that was damaged by the wind. The tree house has a warranty, so the business will pay to repair it. However, the necessary tools were scattered by the wind. Help Jason find the tools by circling them in the picture below.
