The Tennessee Department of Education (department) is required by Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-1-227 to annually compile a list of state laws related to the rights of students and their parents or legal guardians. This document includes a summary of the state laws that provide explicit rights to parents, legal guardians, or students. This list does not include all the legal protections and privileges afforded to students and their parents or guardians.

CAREER READINESS

  - The career readiness assessment must be research-based and match the skill requirements for specific jobs and industries.
  - Students who meet the performance requirements will receive nationally recognized work-readiness certificates or credentials.
  - The tests must be available on both paper and computer-based formats and include a curriculum that allows students to practice these skills at their own pace.
  - Chapter 908 of the Public Acts of 2024 extends the opportunity for students to participate in these career readiness assessments beyond the 2023-24 school year.
- Early College and Career Experiences (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-6-414).

  - Charter schools or chartering authorities that receive student directory information from a local school district may not release that information to a third party without prior written consent from the parent or eligible student.
  - Each charter school or charter authority that receives student directory information must adopt and implement a policy that allows parents or eligible students to decline to receive further information from the charter school.
- Revocation of Charter Agreements (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-13-130).

- Chapter 797 of the Public Acts of 2024 makes bullying and cyberbullying a criminal offense punishable as a Class A misdemeanor.

    - An individualized education program (IEP) team meeting must be convened within ten days of the use of a restraint if: the student's IEP does not provide for the use of a physical holding restraint generally, or for the behavior that precipitated the use of the restraint; or a physical holding restraint is used for an extended period of time, as determined by the state board of education.
    - An IEP team meeting must be convened within ten days of the use of an isolation if: the student's IEP does not provide for the use of an isolation generally, or for the behavior that precipitated the use of the isolation; or an isolation is used for an extended period of time, as determined by the state board of education.

  - General Rights
    - Students have the right to voluntarily pray in school, share their religious beliefs, talk to other students about their faith, possess and share religious books or materials,

If a school district receives a complaint about a particular book or material in the library, and the district is unable to find a satisfactory solution to the complaint, the school board must review the material and determine whether it is suitable for the age and maturity of the students.
  - The Age-Appropriate Materials Act has been amended to prohibit certain library materials from meeting maintained in a school's library collection.
  - The Age-Appropriate Materials Act also provides a timeline for a local board of education or public charter school to review feedback submitted by a student, parent or legal guardian, or a school employee on the age-appropriateness of a library material.
- Appeals for Textbook and Instructional Materials (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-6-2201).
  - The state textbook and instructional materials quality commission must establish a process for a student, a student's parent or legal guardian, or a school employee to challenge a local school board or public charter school governing body's decision regarding which materials to include in a school's library collection as well as the age appropriateness of the materials students can access. This process must also outline how to challenge whether the materials are suitable for or consistent with the educational mission of the school.
- Course Access Program Courses (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-18-103).
  - A student may enroll in up to two course access program courses per school year so long as the student meets all the requirements for the courses. This option is available for students who are unable to enroll in a similar course for a legitimate reason, such as a compatible course not being offered, or other circumstances preventing them from taking a similar course. School districts must inform students and their parents of their right to appeal, in writing, to the local school board or governing body of the school if the student is denied enrollment in a course access program course.
- Credit Exams (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-6-6017).

Please note that this does not apply to schoolteachers. (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-6-1306).
- Schools must inform parents or legal guardians before teaching sexual orientation or gender identity curriculum. Schools must provide parents and legal guardians with information about the program that will be taught as well as a parent or legal guardian's right to inspect the materials being used. (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-6-1308).
- If a student is under the age of 18, their parent or legal guardian must agree in writing if they want the student to learn about topics pertaining to sexual orientation or gender identity in school. If a student is 18 or older, the student may decide for themselves whether they wish to participate in instruction on these topics. A parent or legal guardian may withdraw their consent at any time before the student receives instruction on sexual orientation or gender identity. (Tenn. Code Ann. § 49-6-1308).
- If a student's parent or legal guardian (or the student themselves, if the student is 18 or older) does not consent to receiving instruction on sexual orientation or gender identity, then the student is excused from participating in the curriculum and their grades will not be negatively affected.   - A child who has a disability must be educated in the least restrictive environment. Any removal from the regular education environment (e.g., special classes, separate schooling, or other removals) must only occur when and to the extent that, the student's IEP team determines that the nature or severity of the child's disability education in the regular class setting with the use of any supplemental aids cannot be achieved satisfactorily.   - Parents and legal guardians have the right to appeal a school district's decision to retain a student directly with the department. The state board of education is required to establish rules for the appeals process for students who face retention due to an "approaching" performance level on the ELA portion of the most recent Tennessee comprehensive assessment program (TCAP) test.
    - Parents and legal guardians are required to file an appeal, unless they provide written consent for a principal, guidance counselor, teacher, or other school administrator to file the appeal on their behalf.
  - School districts and public charter schools are encouraged to help parents who are seeking to appeal a retention decision by providing parents with the relevant data required to submit an appeal to the department.
