

Feedback on the accessibility of the Tennessee Department of Education website

The Tennessee Department of Education is committed to ensuring that everyone can use and access our website.

Accessible Web design provides benefits to both those using assistive technology, as well as others. It benefits users with text-based browsers, low-end processors, slow modem connections, or users who do not have state-of-the-art computer equipment. It also allows for easier access to the Internet via technologies such as internet-enabled phones or personal digital assistants.

Tennessee executive branch agency Web sites are subject to the same accessible Web standards as federal agencies. Section 508 of the Federal Register establishes requirements for federal electronic and information technology, and the federal Access Board has issued the standards to meet those requirements.

The state is committed to making TN.gov accessible to all users, and we welcome comments on how to improve the site's accessibility for users with disabilities. To share a comment or complaint about the site's accessibility from a technological perspective, please see the information on this accessibility page. To share feedback about how the Tennessee Department of Education can improve the navigation or general accessibility of the TN.gov/Education page, please reach out to Sara.Gast@tn.gov.
