I. Tennessee Social Studies Content Standards

1. The program addresses 70% of the state social studies content standards as appropriate for this cluster/course.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The textbook addresses 71% of the social studies content standards. Its strengths are found in the depth and historic context of policy making as well as the media and interest groups.

On the other hand, because this book's audience consists of AP students, the more basic concepts, such as citizenship, are overlooked.

Text does satisfy CollegeBoard AP standards.

2. List those state social studies standards that the text does not address or partially addresses.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The textbook does not address standard GC3, as the book does not include mention of the Preamble of the Constitution. While the 9th and 10th Amendments are mentioned in a list of the Bill of Rights, GC7 is not addressed since there is no discussion of the meaning and application of these. The standards that are specific to Tennessee's government, including GC11, GC51, GC52, GC53, GC54, GC55, GC56, and GC59, are absent from the textbook.

GC22 lists a litany of events related to presidential power. The only one mentioned in the textbook is the War Power Act. This mention is not in much depth, therefore that standard is not addressed. The economic rights mentioned in GC35 are not in the textbook, nor is the process of naturalization (GC39).

GC40 is not met since the textbook does not place a significant focus on citizenship.

The textbook does not mention the texts in GC40 and it does not explicitly compare the United States to authoritarian regimes.

The textbook partially addresses other some standards:

GC1 is only partially met because there is no mention of Montesquieu or Machiavelli. While Federalist Papers 10 and 51 are written in their entirety in the book's appendix, there is no Federalist 78 (GC6). There is also no Mayflower Pact, Magna Carta, Two Treatises, Federalist 1, Federalist 9, Federalist 39, Democracy in America, the Declaration of Independence, or any of the "considered texts"(GC8).

All of the cases from GC18 are mentioned, but there are no texts of any of the cases available in the book. GC21 is also only partially addressed since there is no discussion of local or state courts.

The textbook vaguely address the taxpaying and law-obeying parts of GC36, but there is no mention of jury duty. The public services outlined in GC37 and GC38 are vaguely discussed on pages 192-195.

The content of GC46 is covered, but none of the requested primary documents are available.

The missing primary texts are mitigated by the inclusion of the Political Theater DVD, which includes some of the documents in video form (as historical archival footage).

II. Tennessee Social Studies Literacy Components

The program addresses the following literacy component for each grade cluster/course.

1. Text complexity seems appropriate for this grade cluster/course,

Documentation

COMMENTS: The text complexity is appropriate for upper level, high-achieving students (AP students, for instance), but it can be dense for lower level and even mid-level learners. The book does boldface type words of high significance, and even defines them in the margin, but it also relies on academic vocabulary under the assumption that the student already knows the words.

2. The submission provides text alignment to primary and secondary sources. Sources are noted and varied.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The text seldom provides primary sources. There are secondary source-based questioning activities throughout the book. However, the only primary texts are in the appendix-Constitution, Federalist 10, and Federalist 51.

CourseMate offers activities with primary sources. A way to print out the quizzes to allow offline use would be useful.

3. Questioning matches the rigor of the standards.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The AP questions at the back of the book are rigorous, but still multiple choice. There are AP practice essay questions in the back as well. There are 20 topics, but they lack and follow-up and explanation and are not explicitly connected to any chapter.

The beginning of each chapter offers a series of questions that should be answerable by the end of the chapter. The answers are revealed at the end of the chapter, but are reduced to a sentence or two. There are no text-based questions. Other than some of the short answer questions, there are not higher-order thinking tasks.

The Fast Track to a 5 book contains questions matching rigor/expectations of the course.

Documentation

COMMENTS: There are “What Would You Do” debate questions that are introduced by a secondary source, but the arguments are enumerated for the students in the same box on the page. There are no other activities and no text-based questions.

Software contains activities for text-dependent questioning.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The following standards are not addressed:

GC35, GC51, GC52, GC53, GC54, GC55, GC56, GC59

The following standards are only partially addressed:

GC1- The textbook does not mention Blackstone or Machiavelli.

GC6- This is almost completely met. It just lacks Federalist 78.

GC7- The 9th and 10th Amendments are mentioned in a list of the Bill of Rights, but never explained.

GC8- There is no text for the Magna Carta, Mayflower Compact, Two Treatises, Federalist 1, Federalist 9, Federalist 39, Federalist 78, or Democracy in America.

GC15- There is no mention of Schenck v. U.S. or Reno v. ACLU.

GC18- No texts from these cases are offered. Regents v. Bakke is not mentioned.

GC22- While the War Powers Act is covered in terms of presidential power, the other items are not. Cuban Missile Crisis is under a discussion of foreign policy and the Great Society is briefly mentioned, but not in terms of presidential power. The Gulf War and Bosnia are not covered in the textbook.

GC32- The roles of the media in covering American politics are touched up, but given minimal coverage.

GC36- The obligation of jury duty is not covered.

GC37- The importance of volunteering and public service is not mentioned.

GC39- Contemporary controversies surrounding citizenship are covered, but there is no explanation of the naturalization process.

GC43- The concepts are discussed for this standard, but the documents are absent.

II. Tennessee Social Studies Literacy Components

The program addresses the following literacy component for each grade cluster/course.

1. Text complexity seems appropriate for this grade cluster/course,

Documentation

COMMENTS: The text is more challenging than most basal textbooks, but is an appropriate challenge. The text is not overly dense and is careful to tie concepts in with modern issues. The margins provide definitions for bold-faced vocabulary words and facts that supplement the concept in the reading. Appropriate for AP course.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The appendix provides full copies of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Federalist 10, and Federalist 51. However, there are few, if any, primary and secondary texts embedded into the textbook's chapters.

CONCERNS: The additional resources at the end of each chapter could be potential sources for supplementation. The suggested print resources are mostly books that may be difficult to obtain. A list of primary sources referenced in this chapter as a well as additional primary/secondary sources would be more useful than a list of books.

3. Questioning matches the rigor of the standards.

Documentation

COMMENTS: While questioning does not seem to be a priority in this textbook, there appear to be two types of question sections. One type comes under the “What If” section at the start of each chapter. There are two or three questions that direct the reader through learning points that are consistent with the standards. The other type of questioning occurs later in the chapter under the “Beyond Our Borders” heading. These two or three questions call for higher order thinking or debate-driven issues. The rigor of these questions is high.

2. List those state social studies standards that the text does not address or partially addresses.

Documentation

COMMENTS: The following standards were not met:

GC2, GC11, GC35, GC39, GC51, GC52, GC53, GC54, GC55, GC56, GC59

The following standards were partially met:

GC1- Machiavelli and Blackstone are not mentioned.

GC8- Federalist 10, Federalist 51, and the Declaration of Independence are the only texts provided.

GC18- There is no Regents v. Bakke, U.S. v. Virginia, or any of the texts from these cases offered (with the exception of a short selection from Plessy).

GC21- There is no mention of local or state courts.

GC22- While all of these events are mentioned in some capacity, only the War Powers Act is discussed in terms of executive power.

GC37- There is no explicit discussion of this standard, although it is a vague, recurring theme.

GC43- These concepts are covered, but the texts are not included.

GC45- These concepts are covered, but only the Seneca Falls text is included.

II. Tennessee Social Studies Literacy Components

The program addresses the following literacy component for each grade cluster/course.

1. Text complexity seems appropriate for this grade cluster/course,

Documentation

COMMENTS: This text offers appropriate complexity as it is intended for an AP course. The text is accessible due to relevant examples and definitions in the margins.

The following standards are partially addressed:

GC1- Only Locke and a passing mention of Montesquieu are included. There is no other content from this standard.

GC7- The Ninth Amendment is not covered.

GC8- Of the supporting texts requested, this textbook only includes Federalist 10, Federalist 51, Federalist 78, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution.

GC15- Reno v. ACLU is not included in this book.

GC18- The court cases from this standard are discussed, but the textbook does not provide any text on them. United States v. Virginia is not covered.

GC21- State and local courts are not mentioned.

GC22- The Great Society and Gulf War are mentioned, but not in terms of presidential power. There is no coverage in this book of the Cuban Missile Crisis or Bosnia.

GC35- There is a brief mention of unions and the right-to-work issue. There is no coverage of patents or copyrights.

GC36- Taxes are discussed, but not the other components included in this standard.

GC37- There are only vague mentions of these concepts throughout the textbook. The book does not explicitly address this standard.
