

Virtual Mediation

Recent events have made all of us more willing to accept technology as an effective medium for communication. A virtual mediation platform is a voluntary process by which parties can settle their workplace disputes online without the need for in-person appearances.

Provides greater flexibility in terms of meeting location.

There are no geographical restraints.

Significant time savings due to the elimination of travel.

The options for dates and times of meetings open up with online mediation.

Online documentation can be made available to all parties throughout the process.

Virtual conferencing platforms allow for each side to have a breakout room, as is typical at in-person mediations.
