To Governor Bill Lee, Members of the General Assembly, and Citizens of Tennessee:

As the new Executive Director of the Tennessee Human Rights Commission (THRC), I am honored to share with you the FY 2022 annual report on behalf of the Commission. I invite you to review and learn about the continued work of the Commission and our mission which is to safeguard individuals from discrimination through education and enforcement. This report highlights the Commission’s education and outreach, and enforcement actions that are designed to safeguard Tennesseans from discrimination in housing, employment, public accommodations, and Title VI.

As the country continued to return to the workplace, citizens of Tennessee availed themselves of the Commission’s education and outreach activities. During FY 2022, the Commission reached nearly 4 million Tennesseans through these efforts. In addition, the Commission continued to see an increase in housing discrimination complaints, limited access to affordable housing, racial and religious inequities, and requests for medical and religious accommodations.

In April 2021, I joined the THRC after 18 years as an Assistant District Attorney General. My 26-year career has been dedicated to serving the citizens of Tennessee in various governmental and non-profit agencies including the Tennessee Attorney General’s Office, Shelby County District Attorney General’s Office, Hamilton County District Attorney’s Office, Memphis Area Legal Services, and Southwest Tennessee Community College. I have continued to actively protect the civil rights and liberties for my fellow Tennesseans in my new role at the THRC.

I would like to thank our Board Chair and members of our Board of Commissioners who continue to provide leadership to meet the Commission’s mission and vision. The Commission has continued the vital responsibility of enforcing civil rights laws and the work to ensure a discrimination-free Tennessee. The Commission looks forward to serving the citizens of Tennessee with your continued support.

Sincerely,

Muriel Malone Nolen, Esq.

Muriel Malone Nolen, Esq.
Executive Director
To Members of the General Assembly:

This has been and will continue to be a year of change for the Tennessee Human Rights Commission. On February 15, this agency hit a hard re-set. Our leadership team was given the difficult mission of building an organization that is sensitive to the needs of those coming before them; to set a tone of collegiality; and most importantly, to change an office culture that had been toxic for far too long.

This team and this board did just that.

Today, our house is in order. Our processes move forward sensitively and efficiently and this board has provided leadership that will guide present and future efforts. As this board is vacated, we do so knowing that we wouldn’t have changed a thing in the process over the past months. We move forward knowing that every step we took was done with the guidance of the Department of Human Resources to protect due process for all involved. We appreciate their support through a difficult time.

Each current member of this board has served with honor, integrity and a deep commitment to the citizens of the State of Tennessee. These duties have not been taken lightly and the individuals serving are professionals who possess expertise in the areas of communication, education, finance, justice, military, and personnel. They have spent hours preparing for hearings and even more navigating the difficult waters of the past few months.

We wish the new board members much success as they take their seats in September. We’ve left the organization in great hands.

Sincerely,

Robin Derryberry, Chair
Board of Commissioners
THRC Annual Report 2021-2022
In 1978, the Tennessee Human Rights Act (THRA) became law, transforming the commission from an advisory agency to an enforcement agency. Former Commissioner Jocelyn Wurzburg of Memphis, Tennessee was the author of this legislation; her leadership was critical to its passage.

In 1979 and 1980, the law was amended to include disability and age as protected classes.

In 1983, the Commission officially became the Tennessee Human Rights Commission. In 1984, the law was amended to prohibit discrimination in housing. In 1990, the expansion was extended to include familial status and disability as protected classes.

In 2009, the THRA was expanded, and the Tennessee Human Rights Commission was given the authority to verify that state government entities comply with requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Title VI prohibits recipients of federal financial assistance from discriminating on the basis of race, color, and national origin.

In 2014, legislation was passed that amended the THRA (T.C.A. §4-21-201) by reducing the THRC Board of Commissioners from 15 members to nine members, with two members being appointed by leadership from the Senate and House, and five appointed by the Governor. The new board structure became effective on January 1, 2015.

Today, the THRA prohibits discrimination based on race, color, creed, religion, sex, national origin, age (40 and over in employment), disability, and familial status (in housing). The Tennessee Human Rights Commission has maintained collaborative partnerships with the Federal government for nearly forty years. These relationships allows the Commission to investigate complaints involving alleged violations of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Age discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the Americans with Disabilities Act Amendments Act of 2008, and Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 (Fair Housing).

MISSION

SAFEGUARDING INDIVIDUALS FROM DISCRIMINATION THROUGH EDUCATION AND ENFORCEMENT
The Tennessee Human Rights Commission (THRC) receives and investigates complaints of alleged discrimination in employment, housing, and public accommodations. THRC ensures compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 for state agencies that receive Federal Financial Assistance (FFA). Complaints are assessed to determine whether the allegations are jurisdictional charges under the Tennessee Human Rights Act, Tennessee Disabilities Act, and Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Through education and outreach, THRC educates the public about their rights and responsibilities under the Tennessee Human Rights Act, the Tennessee Disabilities Act and, Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Through education and outreach efforts, 3.8 million Tennesseans were reached.

Customer service and intake serve as the initial point of contact and individuals can obtain assistance with filing a complaint of alleged discrimination. The staff provides information on how to file a complaint by sending out complaint forms to requesting parties and by making referrals to other agencies as needed. This year, customer service received 4,228 phone calls, sent 365 complaint forms, and received 323 complaint forms.

Education & Outreach is a key part of the Tennessee Human Rights Commission mission. Through these efforts, the agency brings awareness about the work done by the Tennessee Human Rights Commission. The agency partners with state and federal agencies along with employers, housing providers, faith-based and non-profit organizations and others who want training to achieve this goal. The agency educates the public about their rights and responsibilities of the Tennessee Human Rights Act (THRA) and state and federal anti-discrimination laws through education and outreach, traditional and social media. During the fiscal year the Tennessee Human Rights Commission partnered with TBD organizations.

THRC participated in 46 education and outreach activities during the fiscal year. The activities included in-person and virtual webinars, workshops, educational presentations, virtual exhibits, distributing agency materials, and radio ad campaigns. Through these efforts, the Commission reached 3.8 million individuals. In addition to traditional media, the Commission uses social media as a tool to communicate the mission and inform the public.
