Thompson Station Native Becomes Army Signal Support Specialist

THOMPSON STATION, Tenn. – Pfc. David Burbage, a Thompson Station native, successfully completed Advanced Individual Training to qualify as an Army signal support systems specialist on June 25.

During the 16-week course, Burbage learned to maintain radio and data distribution systems, perform signal support function and technical assistance, and provide training for local area networks.

Burbage will serve with 1st Squadron, 230th Air Cavalry Regiment, headquartered in Nashville.

“I am thankful for the experiences and memories I have compiled thus far,” said Burbage. “I am excited for my future endeavors.”

Burbage graduated from Independence High School in 2021.
