Objectives

- Understand the purpose and goals of shared reading and how it contributes to students’ reading growth and achievement
- Understand how shared reading fits into a larger literacy block
- Make connections to past learning, with a specific focus on key similarities and differences between shared reading and interactive read alouds
Shared reading lessons focus on the explicit teaching of Foundational Literacy and Reading standards, while incorporating additional Writing and Speaking & Listening standards through questioning, discussion, and tasks.

Teacher Content Knowledge
- Teacher regularly implements a variety of subject-specific instructional strategies to enhance student content knowledge.
Teacher Knowledge of Students
Reflect on your current understanding of shared reading.

Independently complete the anticipation guide in your manual.

In the blank rows, write in your own beliefs about shared reading.
Shared Reading: Video

- Watch a video of a first grade shared reading lesson.
- In a group of three, complete the “Looks Like, Sounds Like, Feels Like” chart in your manual and discuss the following questions:
  - What similarities are there between the shared reading lessons in your school and the approach you saw in the video?
  - What differences are there between the shared reading lessons in your school and the approach you saw in the video?
What is Shared Reading?

- Form a new group of three.
- Have each member of your trio read one of the sections about shared reading printed in your manual.
- Highlight or underline key ideas—you’ll need to summarize these key ideas to the rest of your group!
What is Shared Reading?

- With your group of three, work together to complete a KLQ Chart on a piece of poster paper.
- Be sure to share the most important information from your section with your trio.
- You will have opportunities to add to and update your chart throughout this module.

Shared Reading at Different Grade Levels

- Shared reading looks different at different grade levels, given variations in students’ developmental readiness, the expectations of grade level standards, and students’ independent reading abilities.
- At the same time, many features of effective shared reading instruction are consistent across grade levels.
Shared Reading at Different Grade Levels

- Read the following two pages in your manual that explain the traits of shared reading instruction at the grades K–1 level and at the grades 2–3 level.
- Highlight or underline key ideas.
- Then, discuss the following questions with a partner.
  - What are key differences between shared reading in grades K–1 and shared reading in grades 2–3?
  - What are key similarities between shared reading in grades K–1 and shared reading in grades 2–3?
Shared Reading: Video

- Now watch extended video of the first grade shared reading lesson using the book In the Small, Small Pond.
- Consider the research you just studied, and make new connections between this video and your learning.
- As you watch, reflect on the questions in your manual.
- Discuss your responses with a new partner.
Read the research excerpt in your manual.

Use the annotation guide below to support your comprehension.

- 🎉 – This is a new idea for me
- ✓ – This is an idea I’ve already thought about and agree with
- 🤔 – I have a question about this

Then, discuss the questions at the end of the passage with a partner:

- How are shared reading and close reading similar? How are they different?
- How are shared reading and close reading both effective strategies for meeting the demands of our standards?
Shared Reading and Close Reading

- Update your group’s chart, using information from this article as well as the video you just watched.

How Do We Support All Students in Accessing Grade Level Texts?

- Review the two research excerpts in your manual.
- Then, find a new partner sitting at your table, and discuss the question at the end of this section:
  - What kind of instructional setting is required for students to be able to access grade level texts successfully?
  - How can teachers approach instructional planning in a way that ensures students get the differentiation and background knowledge they need?
How Do We Support All Students in Accessing Grade Level Texts?

For Comprehension, Knowledge Matters More Than Reading Ability

Knowledge Matters, accessed 2016
When teachers utilize appropriate scaffolds during shared reading, all students are able to access grade level texts successfully.

The use of interactive read alouds to build background knowledge and vocabulary can provide an appropriate scaffold for supporting students in accessing grade level text.

Providing differentiated supports during shared reading allows all students to master what is being taught.
Lunch

- Lunch is from 12–1 p.m.
- We will finish Module 2 after lunch starting promptly at 1:10 p.m.
Shared Reading and the Literacy Block

- Watch how this kindergarten teacher organizes her literacy block.
- As you watch, independently reflect and respond to the questions in your manual.
- Then, discuss your reflections with a partner.

Shared Reading and the Gradual Release of Responsibility Instructional Framework

- Number Off: Find two other coaches who have the same table number as you.
- As a trio, create your own graphic that illustrates the gradual release of responsibility within a literacy block.
  - Use the space provided in your manual.
Discuss the following questions:

- How does the gradual release of responsibility model support students in becoming skillful, independent readers?
- How does shared reading specifically fit within the gradual release model?
Logical sequencing and segmenting is an essential component to successful presentation of content.

Decisions about the order of the gradual release, or in this case, the varying modes of reading, should be made to ensure that the presentation of content is sequenced and segmented to be logical for the purposes and goals of the lesson and to best meet students’ needs.
Making Connections between Read Alouds and Shared Reading

- Independently review the statements on the left side of the manual page that describe traits of read aloud, shared reading, or both.

- Draw a line from the description to the appropriate section on the right side of the page.

Synthesis: Shared Reading

- Reflect on all that you’ve learned so far about shared reading.
- Then, discuss the following questions with a partner:
  - In your own words, what is shared reading? What are the most important characteristics of an effective shared reading lesson?
  - How does shared reading support students’ reading achievement?
Synthesis: Shared Reading

- Update your group’s chart

Shared Reading Planning Sheet

- Use this tool to support your teachers in identifying specific areas of their shared reading practice they’d like to work on.
Transition to Module 3

- You will rejoin your Regional Coach Consultant and other coaches from your region for Module 3.
- Module 3 will begin promptly at 3 p.m.
- Use the next 30 minutes to take a break and transition to your new room.
