DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

ALVIN C. YORK INSTITUTE, JAMESTOWN, TENNESSEE

- 1) Charles Garrett stated that the SBC had referred to the Subcommittee, with authority to act, a request for approval of a project and acknowledgment of the source of funding for Original High School Demolition at Alvin C. York Institute, Jamestown, and selection of a designer to design and supervise the project.

Assistant Commissioner Robert Greene was recognized who stated that recent inspections at Alvin C. York Institute had raised serious concerns over safety. After being told the front wall could fall at any time, he said that a fence was installed and the students moved out of the adjacent building, which was in the fall area, should the vacant building fall. Meanwhile, different possibilities had been looked at to include renovation of the old high school or replacement in the Master Plan. He said if the recommendation is to save the building, York would have to have temporary classrooms, plus deal with the hazardous materials issue. Charles Garrett asked Commissioner Greene if, in past budgets, the Department has requested money to do anything to the building. Deborah Davis responded that $800,000 had been requested for planning in previous years, and that they were requesting $1.4 million in the 08/09 budget to stabilize the building.

Mark Buchanan, with EMC Structural Engineers, was recognized. He stated that they were not comfortable with "temporary shoring" of the building, which would last for weeks, not years. He said another issue was the hazardous materials, and that part of the $500,000 estimate for stabilization was to clean up that immediate area. Treasurer Sims asked if the front wall was the only portion of the structure that is in danger of falling down in two years. Mr. Buchanan responded "yes" but, as with age, "the curve starts moving very fast toward the end." Treasurer Sims said that investing $500,000 is not an iron-clad guarantee that further stabilization won't be needed, and was told "that's correct". Treasurer Sims asked if there was a different standard of building codes for gathering places vs. academic places, and if the building was renovated as classrooms, could it meet codes. Mr. Buchanan responded that renovations would meet current codes.

Secretary of State Darnell stated that, after looking at the pictures, it was obvious the building would have to be gutted and everything torn out. He said that a Master Plan would address the need for school space, and that the process of evaluation is underway. Comptroller Morgan asked about space needs, and Commissioner Greene replied that the classrooms are full, and they need a larger cafeteria and kitchen. Secretary of State Darnell confirmed that it would be feasible to save the brick from this building and utilize it on a new building.

Several supporters of the project were recognized and spoke passionately in favor of saving the building, including descendants of Alvin York, Legislators, and the County Executive for Fentress County. State Representative Henry Fincher stated that a case could be made either way—to replace or to renovate—but he hoped that the Subcommittee would look higher than the numbers in the engineering report. He said that it came down to a mild percentage increase of about $600,000 for renovation of the old building, but involves saving the most important school building in the state.

When looking at bricks and mortar, and dollars and cents, Representative Fincher said he hoped the Subcommittee would factor the importance of the building into the budget as well.

Secretary of State Darnell said he needed to clarify that the Subcommittee does not have authority to appropriate money, and that the needed funds do not exist today. He said that the dollars may materialize, but the Subcommittee is limited to what authority they have. Treasurer Sims agreed that finance shouldn't drive everything. Commissioner Goetz said he understood their desire to support the legacy of Alvin York. He added that the State supports and pays for the operation of the high school and that was something done for no other County. He stated that he hasn't heard anything from the community as far as what they planned to contribute, and didn't think it was fair to put the entire burden on the State.

Treasurer Sims summarized the discussion. He stated that the students have been moved out of danger, and there is a Master Plan in process. He said, assuming the building is stabilized, he made a motion to defer action for 90 days to get a clear feel of the budget, find out what the needs are from the master plan, and determine the community's support. Commissioner Goetz raised the point about local support.

Mr. Mullinix asked for an opportunity to see if some kind of solution could be worked out. Comptroller Morgan asked Charles Garrett to set up a meeting with staff and others to see what could be done. Several of the supporters offered suggestions of creating revenue (Roane State Community College, Heritage Tours, the lottery, Preservation Trust). Treasurer Sims offered the quote that "nothing focuses a mind like a good hanging". Commissioner Greene mentioned the need for portable classrooms should the decision be made to save the building. Treasurer Sims suggested that perhaps the County will help with the portables.

George Edward York and others expressed their gratitude for being heard. Comptroller Morgan stated that he would like the study group to convene as quickly as possible. Treasurer Sims amended his motion to reflect 120 days to allow time for adequate study including any grant writing/receiving. The motion was seconded, and passed without objection.

Estimated Project Cost:       $500,000.00
