Dear Reader:

The Tennessee Commission on Children and Youth (TCCY) is pleased to present KIDS COUNT: The State of the Child 2014. This report includes county-by-county data on the well-being of children. The data are organized as they relate to indicators of outcomes we all want for our children – to be safe, healthy, educated, nurtured and supported, and engaged in activities that help them succeed in school and in life.

As the Annie E. Casey Foundation's KIDS COUNT partner in Tennessee, TCCY is proud to engage in and support data-driven advocacy for policies and programs that improve outcomes for Tennessee children and families. Each county page presents key data for that county along with the state rate. This report includes a comprehensive list of the indicators currently available on the KIDS COUNT Data Center, along with an indication regarding whether it is available for each county, school system, Congressional district or only for the state as a whole. TCCY is always interested in adding additional county-by-county data and has added several indicators in the last year or so. Numbers and rates for additional indicators are available on the Data Center.

The KIDS COUNT Data Center is an incredible, easy to use resource available to anyone. In addition to a link to the Data Center, this report also includes a description of ways to use the information found there. Data can be sorted in a variety of ways to create custom profiles for individual counties, or to create maps, line graphs or bar charts comparing counties within Tennessee or Tennessee to other/selected states. It includes a wealth of information about the well-being of Tennessee children and families and children across the nation. Statistics posted on the KIDS COUNT Data Center (www.datacenter.kidscount.org) are important resources for efforts by TCCY and service providers, advocates and decision-makers across the state.

We all know Tennessee's future prosperity depends on what we do for our children today – the workforce and parents of tomorrow. We encourage all Tennesseans to come together through the Regional Councils on Children and Youth and other organizations to work with TCCY in data-driven efforts to improve outcomes for children and families.

Sincerely,
