

Liza Quinn
Appeals Advocate
Tennessee Department of Veterans Services

Liza Quinn joined the Tennessee Department of Veterans Services in February of 2016 and currently serves as Lead Appeals Advocate for the Board of Veterans' Appeals (BVA) team of the Appeals & Accreditation Division. She previously served as a Veteran Resource Coordinator at the Nashville Field Office.

Liza grew up in San Diego, CA and graduated from California Lutheran University. She began her Army career in 1991 as a Combat Medic with the California National Guard.

Liza enlisted in the Army in 1993 and served for 23 years before retiring in 2015. She graduated from Officer Candidate School in 1998 and was commissioned as a Medical Service Officer. As a Medical Service Officer, she had oversight of Army Medical Evaluation Boards and medical records. She had three overseas deployments during her Army career. She served with the 44th Medical Brigade of the 82nd Airborne Division in Bagram, Afghanistan from March through September 2003. She deployed to Muzaffarabad, Pakistan with the 212th MASH from November 2005 through February 2006. She has a second tour in Afghanistan from May 2010 through May 2011 as Patient Administration Officer for 101st Airborne Division.

Liza is a mom to Cory and Bailey and grandma to 4-year-old Ashton.