Workforce Development Updates:

Administrator Susan Cowden provided an update on information pertaining to the major national changes in Washington regarding WIA funding. She stated the objectives for this meeting which included the recommendation for funding for Statewide Program Operations, presentations from the major state contracts due to budget cuts, review of the potential re-structuring of the local areas, recommendation for approval of all local areas through 09/11, recommendation for incentives for local areas as well as an information presentation on the Life Sciences Sector and Tennessee Technology Council. She discussed the WIA Formula Funding updates and changes in Program Year and Fiscal Year funding allocations, including a net loss of 1/3 or about $3 million. While there have been reductions in all areas, there are two new WIA Programs added: Re-Integration of Ex-Offenders and the Workforce Innovation Fund which is a competition based grant. Finally, she provided members with an overview of National Emergency Grants (NEG), the new definition of local areas as identified by Economic and Community Development (ECD), local performance updates for the 13 areas, and Statewide Program Recommendations based on maximum liability.

Workforce Development Needs in the Life Sciences Sector:

Executive Director for the BioTN Foundation and President and CEO for the Tennessee Technology Council, Dr. Leslie Lynch provided information on the competitive and innovative ways that jobs are created in the Tennessee workforce. She highlighted the partnership between the Tennessee Technology Council and Jobs for Tennessee Graduates, while highlighting the importance and growth of the life science industry in Tennessee. Dr. Lynch offered several examples of growing life sciences industry in East, Middle, and West Tennessee, some of which are St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital, Vanderbilt University and Medical Center, Hospital Corporations of America (HCA), Oak Ridge National Laboratory and the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. She stressed that the growth of the life sciences sector in Tennessee is dependent upon capital: knowledge/intellectual capital, human capital, and financial capital. In conclusion, she stated that the State of Tennessee will continue to thrive in the life sciences sector as long as close attention is given to diverse education and training for K12/Post Secondary students and the young workforce.

Jobs for Tennessee Graduates and Looking Ahead to the Future:

Ken Smith, President of Jobs for America’s Graduates (JAG), the national organization which oversees Jobs for Tennessee Graduates (JTG), presented on growth of JTG over the past 30 years and Tennessee’s first place performance out of 32 partnering states. He provided an overview of the context for JAG and its relativity to JTG’s consistent outstanding performance. This program has proven very successful due its bi-partisan leadership of various governors across the county, representation of senior education leaders, as well as senior business leaders from major companies. Mr. Smith described the 3 target populations, high school model application and out-of-school youth are currently being applied in Tennessee, and middle school model application exists as well. He stated that the success of each model is based on having the right people with the right enthusiasm, both of which Tennessee has been able to maintain since the beginning of JTG in 1981. Despite the funding issues, JAG has made the commitment to continue its services in the top five states, by committing private funds towards the continuation of JTG. The opportunities that this program presents have proven to be successful for youth and the workforce across Tennessee.

Overview of State Contract and Budget Reductions:

As a result of the budget cuts to state contracts, Lee Grehan, Assistant Director for the Sparks Bureau of Business & Economic Research (SBBER) at the University of Memphis, returned to present an overview of SBBER’s services provided to the state and their proposal for continued service based on funding limitations. He discussed the background of SBBER, the partnership with TDLWD, as well as the current activities performed. SBBER’s current activities in partnership with the state consist of reporting, survey research, and technical assistance. While he plans to continue activity in each of these three areas, Mr. Grehan stated in his proposal that there will be several exclusion of services beginning July 1, 2011. Most of the services that are excluded in the new proposal will be able to be provided by the internal TDLWD staff members and Mr. Grehan stated that SBBER will provide assistance with training TDLWD staff.
