Effects of Affordable Care Act

The Affordable Care Act (ACA), known as Obamacare, was implemented in stages starting in 2010. The goal of the act was to increase coverage for groups of people that were uninsured followed by a system that insured, over time, all Americans. Without taking a position on the success or failure of this legislation there have been demographic changes since its inception. Here are some of those changes:

Based on 2015 Enrollment

An estimated 11.7 million enrolled in Marketplace insurance plans during the 2015 open enrollment. This includes 4.5 million who re-enrolled from 2014. An additional 4.7 million (total of 16.4 million) enrolled in Medicaid Expansion, young adults with parental coverage, and other coverage options. This led to an uninsured rate of 11.9 percent, down from a high of 18 percent in 2013. Before the ACA was passed in 2009, 15.7 percent of the population (48.6 million) were uninsured.

People are currently insured by their employer (43.3 percent), a self-insurance plan (21.1 percent), Medicaid (9 percent), Medicare (7.3 percent), Military/Veteran's (4.7 percent), a union (2.6 percent), other (4.2 percent), or no insurance (14.5 percent). These percentages include primary and combined insurance programs.

Based on the Gallup-Healthways Well-Being Index, the 11.9 percent of uninsured Americans are: Hispanic (30.4 percent), Black (14.6 percent), and White (7.7 percent). By income, 22 percent earn less than $36,000; 8.2 percent earn between $36,000 and $89,999; while 3.5 percent earn more than $90,000. Ninety-eight percent of Americans with income less than 400 percent of the federal poverty level are uninsured. This has not changed with the advent of the ACA. The percent of uninsured Americans by age group are: 26 to 34 years old (20.8 percent), 18 to 25 years old (16.8 percent), 35 to 64 years old (12 percent), and greater than 65 years old (1.8 percent).

There were greater percentage decreases in the uninsured in states that expanded Medicaid. The insurance costs are less than $5,000 a year per enrollee (including enrollees without subsidies but with Marketplace coverage), under $3,500 per enrollee with subsidies, and under $4,500 for enrollees with Medicaid/CHIP.

Since the beginning of the ACA in 2010 there are 5.7 million young adults between 19 and 25 able to stay on their parents' healthcare plan. According to a Gallup poll in March 2015, an additional 1 million people were covered by their employer in a non-marketplace plan.

In 2014

In 2014, there were eight million Americans newly enrolled in a Marketplace plan. Of those, 54 percent were female; 34 percent were under age 35; 28 percent were between the ages of 18 and 34; 65 percent selected a Silver plan and 20 percent selected a Bronze plan (the least expensive plan); and 85 percent selected a plan with financial assistance. There were an additional seven million Americans enrolled in Medicaid and CHIP with about 1.5 million waiting for approval. Of the seven million enrollees, one million were enrolled earlier in Medicaid Expansion plans in seven states. Included in this number are those who lost their eligibility. There were approximately 2.6 million young people under 26 who were able to enroll in their parents' plan. The uninsured rate in 2014 was 13.4 percent. The next page has detailed 2014 data by state.

NONFARM EMPLOYMENT & LABOR FORCE NARRATIVE

Total nonfarm employment increased by 63,800 jobs from June 2014 to June 2015. There were large increases in professional/business services (up 12,100 jobs), which includes increases of 8,100 jobs in administrative/support/waste management and 2,500 jobs in professional/scientific/technical services; health care/social assistance (up 8,400 jobs), which includes increases of 5,000 jobs in ambulatory health care services and 1,900 jobs in hospitals; food services/drinking places (up 7,800 jobs); and retail trade (up 7,700 jobs), which includes an increase of 2,700 jobs in motor vehicle/parts dealers combined with a decrease of 1,600 jobs in clothing/clothing accessories stores. There were smaller increases in transportation/warehousing (up 4,900 jobs); mining/logging/construction (up 4,700 jobs); transportation equipment manufacturing (up 4,000 jobs); financial activities (up 3,300 jobs), which includes increases of 1,700 jobs in real estate/rental/leasing and 1,600 jobs in finance/insurance; wholesale trade (up 3,200 jobs), which includes increases of 1,500 jobs in durable goods wholesalers and 1,100 jobs nondurable goods wholesalers; and arts/entertainment/recreation (up 3,000 jobs). These increases were partially offset by a decline of 1,400 jobs in federal government.

During June 2015, nonfarm employment decreased by 17,500 jobs. The decreases were all seasonal education declines. There were declines of 29,900 jobs in local government, 5,100 jobs in educational services, and 4,400 jobs in state government educational services. This was partially offset by increases in arts/entertainment/recreation (up 4,900 jobs); professional/business services (up 4,000 jobs), which includes an increase of 2,800 jobs in administrative/support/waste management; health care/social assistance (up 3,500 jobs), which includes an increase of 2,100 jobs in ambulatory health care services; other services (up 1,800 jobs); and retail trade and financial activities (both up 1,500 jobs).

Tennessee's seasonally adjusted estimated unemployment rate for June 2015 was 5.7 percent, down 0.1 percentage point from the revised May 2015 rate. The United States unemployment rate in June was 5.3 percent, down 0.2 percentage point from the revised May 2015 rate.

In June 2014, the national unemployment rate was 6.1 percent while the state rate was 6.6 percent.

Across Tennessee, the unemployment rate increased in 94 counties and declined in Overton County. There were 91 counties with a rate between 5 and 10 percent. Hancock County had the largest increase in rates for the third consecutive month. In June 2015, the lowest rate was in Williamson County at 4.6 percent, up 0.5 percentage point from the previous month, while the highest rate was in Hancock County at 12.7 percent, up from 9.8 percent in May.

The data from all the nonfarm employment estimates tables include all full- and part-time nonfarm wage and salary employees who worked during or received pay for any part of the pay period that includes the 12th of the month. This is a count of jobs by place of work. Agricultural workers, proprietors, self-employed persons, workers in private households, and unpaid family workers are excluded. These numbers may not add due to rounding. Data are based on the 2014 benchmark.
