The Census Bureau has partnered with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to create estimates of the percentage of the population covered by health insurance for every county in the nation. The Small Area Health Insurance Estimates (SAHIE) are model-based with inputs from the Annual Social and Economic Supplement to the Current Population Survey. Also included in this model are population estimates, decennial census, County Business Patterns, administrative record sources such as income tax return data, Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) participation data, and SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, formerly the Food Stamp Program) participation data. There are models to estimate coverage for all persons under 65 years of age as well as models to look at coverage for various income groups. Persons over 65 years of age are not included in this model as they are fully covered by Medicare.

Tennessee Data

Viewed in light of the nation as a whole, Tennessee is positioned fairly close to the middle for health insurance coverage. There are over 800,000 uninsured persons in the state (15.9 percent) out of an under 65 population of 5.3 million. Individual counties in Tennessee exhibit uninsured populations as high as 22 percent. The highest counties were Crockett (22 percent), Pickett (21.8 percent), Bedford (21.1 percent), and Fentress (20.1 percent). However drastic that may seem, there are some counties in Texas, for example, with uninsured rates double that. There were 19 Tennessee counties that had a margin of error over 3 percent. It is worth noting that three of the four counties in Tennessee with the highest rates of uninsured population also have the highest margins of error—raising the possibility that the rates are not as extreme as they first appear. Of the many potential reasons for the variability of the estimates, a large group of migrant workers is certainly conceivable.

The counties with the lowest percentage of uninsured population include Lauderdale (11.5 percent), Campbell (12.7 percent), and Claiborne and Dyer (both at 12.8 percent).

The four largest counties (Shelby, Davidson, Knox, and Hamilton) have almost 40 percent of all the uninsured persons in the state.

Additional data on the coverage of various subgroups of the population, most notably those persons in or near poverty, are available on the Census Bureau's SAHIE Web site: <http://www.census.gov/did/www/sahie/index.html>.

Notes: Detail may not sum to totals and percents due to rounding. Percentages were calculated before any rounding occurred. Rounding error is more prominent for small counties.
 1. A margin of error is the difference between an estimate and its upper or lower confidence bounds (based on 90 confidence level in this table). Confidence bounds can be created by adding the margin of error to the estimate (for an upper bound) and subtracting the margin of error from the estimate (for a lower bound).

2. The number in a demographic group is the number of people in the poverty universe in that age, sex, and race/Hispanic origin group.
